ADVERTISEMENT.

In presenting the Second Volume of the National Calendar to the Public, the Publishers of it cannot refrain from returning their sincere thanks to those gentlemen in the public offices who have afforded them the facilities necessary for procuring the greater part of the information which is contained in this work.

It is the aim of the Publishers to furnish an annual volume, which shall be strictly national, comprehending in it every thing that relates to the affairs of the several States of the Union, so far as they are connected with those of the nation. The topics of this latter description will be much increased in future volumes.

A particular object in the National Calendar of this year, is to attract the attention of scientific men to meteorological observations, upon a more general scale than has heretofore been usual. For this purpose, an Almanac has been inserted, upon a new plan. Instead of the fruitless custom of stating the weather by anticipation, the actual weather of the year 1820, has been inserted opposite the corresponding day in each month of the present year, together with the variations of the thermometer, at three different hours of each day, and the average of heat or cold for every day in the month. They will thus remain on record; and, being published from year to year, will, in a series of years, readily afford the facts necessary to ascertain the changes in the climate. The particulars have been kindly furnished by two gentlemen of Washington; the degrees of heat or cold, at the three several periods of the twenty-four hours, and the weather, principally by one person, and the average range of the thermometer, for each day and month, by another. In the former case, the observations were made at 7 o'clock, A. M. at 12, and at 9 P. M. and in the latter, at 7 A. M. at 2, and at 7 P. M. In both instances the mercury was exposed to the open air, according to the scale of Fahrenheit. With these meteorological facts may be classed the Tables of Deaths in five of the principal cities of the United States, inserted at page 240; it being well understood, that there is an immediate connexion between atmospherical phenomena, and the various diseases to which the human constitution is liable. The attention of scientific and professional men is respectfully invited to this subject.

Endeavours have been made to procure a list of all the newspapers, and periodical literary works of a higher rank, in the different States of the Union, but without complete success. Attention will be continued to this object, and to Academies, Colleges and Universities: the Teachers and Professors in which may render a benefit to their respective institutions, by enriching the Calendar for 1822, with an accurate account of them.

Two etchings accompany this volume, one of which is a western View of the Capitol, as it will present itself to the eye, when finished, from the Pennsylvania Avenue. The other is a Floor Plan of the Chamber of the Senate, and Hall of the House of Representatives, with the seats of the members, numbered, and a Directory, pointing out the number of the seat occupied by each member, and the name of the member occupying each seat.

Since the present volume was put to press, some changes in office have taken place; and, in one or two instances, there have been some particulars overlooked. The corrections of these are annexed to this advertisement; and are as follow:

For David Gelston, Collector of the Port of New-York, page 30, read Jonathan Thomson, since appointed.

To the District Tonnage, at page 174, after 1819, add, Registered, 611,931; Enrolled and Licensed, 571,057; Fishing, 76,763; Total 1,260,751 tons.

Among the Officers of the Marine Corps, insert Archibald Henderson, as Lieut. Colonel Commandant.

In the List of the Members of Congress, strike out the names of Jesse Slocumb, of North Carolina, James Burrill, jun. and Nath. Hazard, of Rhode Island, and John Lynn, of New-Jersey, who have since died.

To the List of Senators in the Alphabetical order, at page 122, add the name of Richard M. Johnson, and of Representtatives, page 123, Aaron Hobart, accidentally omitted: and strike out the names of the deceased.

In the Committees of Congress, add Mr. Storrs to the committee on the Expenditures in the Department of State, in the room of Mr. Peck; and Mr. R. M. Johnson, to the committee of Enrolled Bills, in place of Mr. Wilson.

To the List of Newspapers authorized to publish the Laws of the United States, at page 155, add—

American Advocate and Kennebec Advertiser.—S. K. Gilman, Hallowell.

Bangor Register.—J. Burton, jun. Bangor.

The Arkansas Gazette.—Woodruff & Briggs, Post of Arkansas.

NATIONAL CALENDAR.

1821.

EXECUTIVE.

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

JAMES MONROE, of Virginia, $25,000 per annum.

[The President must be 35 years of age, 14 years a resident of the United States, a natural born citizen, or a citizen at the time of the adoption of the Constitution. In case of his removal, death, resignation, or inability, the duties of his office devolve on the Vice-President; and, by act of the 1st March, 1792, in case of removal, death, resignation, or inability, both of President and Vice President, the President of the Senate pro tempore; and in case there shall be no President of the Senate, then the Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the time being, is to act as President. The legal title of this officer is The President of the United States; and he is, by the Constitution, Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy of the United States, and of the Militia of the several States, when called into the service of the United States. The President receives 25,000 dollars per annum salary, which cannot be increased or diminished during the term for which he is elected. His salary was fixed by act of 18th February, 1793. He, as well as the Vice President, is elected by Electors in the several States, who are chosen as the Legislatures of the several States may provide. According to an act of Congress of the 1st of March, 1792, the choice of these Electors must be made within 34 days preceding the first Wednesday of December, of the year in which an election of President and Vice-President takes place; and they must be equal in number to all the Senators and Representatives in Congress; but no Senator or Representative, or person holding an office of trust or profit under the United States, can be appointed an Elector. The votes for President and Vice-President are given by the Electors on the first Wednesday of December, in every fourth year, throughout the Union. The period of service is four years; but there is no restriction as to re-election. There is, however, no instance of any President's having served for a longer time than eight years.]

VICE-PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

DANIEL D. TOMPKINS, of New-York, $5,000 per annum.

[The Vice-President is, ex-officio, President of the Senate; and, as President of the Senate, in virtue of an act of the 8th of May, 1792, one of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund. His salary, of 5,000 dollars per annum, is fixed by the act of 18th of February, 1793. The Vice-President is not a member of the Cabinet.]

DEPARTMENT OF STATE.

[The Department of State was created by the act of 15th September, 1789. Previously to that period, by Act of 27th July, 1789, it was denominated the Department of Foreign Affairs. The Secretary is, ex-officio, a Commissioner of the Sinking Fund, and, by usage, a member of the Cabinet. He corresponds officially with the public Ministers of the United States at Foreign Courts, and with the Ministers of Foreign Powers resident in the United States. He performs the main duties of what, in other Governments, is called the Home Department; has the control of the office which issues Patents for useful Inventions; and preserves the evidence of Copy-Rights. He holds his office at the will of the President]

CONSULS OF THE U. STATES TO THE POWERS OF BARBARY.

[Consuls to Barbary are more of diplomatic than commercial agents; not only as it regards their vocation, but also as it respects their compensation. They receive regular annual salaries; and their pay does not in the least depend on fees of any kind. There has been only one change in this branch of the public service during the year 1820. James Simpson, Esq. who had long held the situation of American consul at Tangier, having died there, his place is now filled by John Mullowny, Esq.]

CONSULS AND COMMERCIAL AGENTS OF THE UNITED STATES.

[Consuls of the United States, generally so called, are, in effect, Agents for Commerce and Seamen; which latter denomination, for particular reasons, is given to some of this class of public officers. They receive no yearly salaries; and their compensation is derived from the fees which are allowed by law. The amount of these fees depends, of course, upon the state of foreign trade, which is perpetually fluctuating. Consuls of the United States, for commercial purposes, are regularly admitted and recognised, as to their official functions, in the ports of Christian Europe; but in the colonies of the European nations, agents for commerce and seamen mostly exercise the duties of their stations under courtesy, without any formal recognition; and, in some instances, from the jealousy of colonial policy, they have not been permitted to exercise them at all. In their public capacity, consuls and agents for commerce and seamen, are principally occupied in verifying, in different forms, the legality of the trade of the United States with foreign nations, and in relieving and sending home American seamen, who, by accident or misfortune, are left destitute within the jurisdiction of their several consulates and agencies.]

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

[The office of Secretary of the Treasury was created by Act of the 2d of September, 1789. He superintends all the fiscal concerns of the government, and, upon his own responsibility, recommends to Congress measures for improving the condition of the revenue. He holds his office at the will of the President; is, by usage, a member of the cabinet; and, ex-officio, one of the commissioners of the sinking fund. By an act of Congress, of the 15th of May, 1820, the Treasury Department has been invested with extraordinary powers for the recovery of public moneys not accounted for or withheld by officers receiving them prior to such moneys being paid into the Treasury. Warrants of distress, in the nature of executions upon judgments, are authorized upon certificates of balances from the first comptroller, against principals and sureties in default; and the judges of the United States are, by the same law, clothed with extensive chancery jurisdiction, with a view of ameliorating any undue severity to individuals which may possibly occur under the warrants in question.—Accounts of the government are finally settled at the Treasury Department; for which purpose it is divided into the office of the Secretary, (who superintends the whole, but who is not, therefore, absolute, with respect to the power of adjusting claims or of paying money;) into two comptrollers, five auditors, a register, and a treasurer. The auditors of the public accounts are empowered to administer oaths or affirmations to witnesses in any case in which they may deem it necessary for the due examination of the accounts with which they are charged. Besides the disbursement of moneys for the great objects of government, there are contingent funds appropriated yearly by Congress. These are expended for such objects as could not well be foreseen, by some one of the clerks or other officer belonging to each of the departments, who is specially entrusted with that business, to whom the accounts of such contingencies must be presented. He takes a receipt in his own name, and at the end of each quarter of a year is brought to a settlement himself, for all his disbursements, at the Treasury Department.]

COMMISSIONER OF THE REVENUE.

[By an Act of Congress of the 23d of December, 1817, it was provided, whenever the collection of the duties and direct tax should be completed, that the office of Commissioner of the Revenue should cease; and the President, by the same act, if he deemed it expedient, was authorized to discontinue the office sooner; and, in that case, the immediate superintendence of outstanding duties and taxes was to be placed in such officer of the Treasury as the Secretary of that Department might designate. Under this legislative provision, the office was vacated during the past year by Mr. Samuel Harrison Smith, the late Commissioner, and the remaining duties of it were assigned to the Fifth Auditor of the Treasury, where they are now performed, the same clerks having been retained.]

GENERAL LAND OFFICE.

[Prior to the 25th of April, 1812, grants of Land were issued by Letters Patent from the Department of State. By an Act of that date, a General Land Office was established, in which all Patents for Land are now made out and recorded. It is a subordinate branch of the Treasury Department, with which it is closely connected by the accountability of the receivers of public moneys arising from the sales of the national lands.]

LIGHT HOUSES.

[The erection and support of Light Houses devolves on the Government of the United States as incidental to commerce. They are provided for, by an annual and specific appropriations; and are placed under the direction and control of the Secretary of the Treasury; but the regulations which relate to them are more immediately attended to in the office of the Fifth Auditor, into whose hands this business has fallen, with that of the late Commissioner of the Revenue.]

COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

[The business of the Internal Revenue being in progress to final settlement, according to the provisions of the Act of the 23d of December, 1817, some of the Collectors may have fully adjusted their accounts, in which case they would be considered no longer in office; and some may have been discontinued by the President of the United States, in virtue of the authority with which he is invested, by that act, to unite any two or more Collection Districts into one. But as these Collectors, even when out of office, will necessarily be sources of information to Government, and to persons interested, it has been thought the better way to retain them as they stood during the past year, leaving until the year 1822, when the business will have approached nearer to completion, the insertion of an exactly discriminated list of this class of officers.]

MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT.

[At the close of the war with Great Britain, in 1815, Congress, by an act of the 3d of March, of that year, fixed the Military Peace Establishment of the United States at not exceeding ten thousand men; in such proportions of artillery, infantry, and riflemen, as the President should judge proper. By the same act, the corps of engineers, as then established, was retained. The President of the United States is, ex officio, commander in chief of the army, and directs its operations by orders issued through the department of war. It is at present immediately commanded by two major-generals; one for the northern, and the other for the southern, division. The organic institutions of the whole military establishment of the Union are briefly these:

1st. The War Department, established 7th of August, 1789.

2d. The Adjutant and Inspector General, authorized by act of 24th of April, 1816.

3d. The corps of Engineers, which, with the professors and teachers provided for by acts of 29th of April, 1812, and 14th of April, 1818, constitutes the Military Academy.

4th. The Ordnance Department, as regulated by the act of the 8th of February, 1815.

5th. The office of Commissary General of Subsistence, authorized by act of 14th of April, 1818.

6th. The office of Commissary General of Purchases, instituted by act of 28th of March, 1812.

7th. A Paymaster General, as prescribed by the act of the 24th of April, 1816.

8th. A Quartermaster General, as provided for by act of 14th April, 1818.

9th. A Surgeon General, whose office was established by a provision of the same act.

10th. An Apothecary General, according to the acts of 3d of March, 1813, and 24th of April, 1816. And 11th. Officers of the Topographical Department, who were not provided for by the act of the 3d of April, 1815, fixing the peace establishment, but have been subsequently authorized.]

MILITARY ACADEMY.

[The Military Academy consists of the corps of Engineers, of one Professor and Assistant Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy, one Professor and Assistant Professor of Mathematics, one Professor and Assistant Professor of the Art of Engineering in all its branches, a Chaplain and Professor of Ethics, a Teacher of Drawing, a Surgeon and a Sword Master. The Cadets are limited to two hundred and fifty in number: They may be attached, at the discretion of the President of the United States, as students to the Military Academy, and become subject to its regulations: They are arranged into companies of non-commissioned officers and privates, for the purposes of military instruction: there are four musicians to each company; and the corps is trained and taught all the duties of a private, non-commissioned officer, and officer; is encamped at least three months of each year, and instructed in all the duties incident to a regular camp. Candidates for Cadets must not be under fourteen, nor above twenty-one years of age; and each Cadet, previously to his appointment by the President, must be versed in reading, writing, and arithmetic, and must sign articles, with the consent of his parent or guardian, thereby engaging to serve five years, unless sooner discharged. The pay of a Cadet is sixteen dollars per month and two rations per day. When any Cadet has received a regular degree from the Academic Staff, after going through all the classes, he is considered as among the candidates for a commission in any corps, according to the duties he may be judged competent to perform; and if there is not, at the time, a vacancy in such corps, he may be attached to it at the discretion of the President, by brevet of the lowest grade, until a vacancy shall happen. The Military Academy is seated at West Point, in the State of New-York, on the river Hudson.]

INDIAN TRADE AND INDIAN AFFAIRS.

[The act of the 7th of August, 1789, enjoins on the Secretary of War to execute such duties relative to Indian Affairs as may be confided to him; and, under this authority, he superintends the negotiation of Indian Treaties, and other matters connected with Indian Agencies and Trade, which, from the necessary association between the subjection and civilization of the aborigines, within the territorial limits of the United States, intermingle themselves with the Military Establishment. Trade with the Indians is regulated by the act of the 2d of March, 1811, which, however, is limited in its duration to the 3d of March, 1821; when it will expire, unless renewed by an act of the second session of the 16th Congress. The whole system is conducted by a superintendent, factors, and agents, and agents for Indian Affairs; all of whom are appointed according to the act of the 16th of April, 1818, and are obliged to give bond with securities for the faithful performance of their duties. The pecuniary accountability of this branch of the public service is to the Treasury Department, through the Fifth Auditor.]

NAVAL ESTABLISHMENT.

[The Naval Establishment of the United States consists of the Navy, properly so called, and of the Marine Corps, the germs of which are to be found in the ordinances of the Revolutionary Congress, as far back as 1775. The first provision for a Naval Establishment, under the present Constitution, is contained in an Act of the 27th of March, 1794, in consequence of the depredations committed by the Algerine corsairs on the commerce of the United States. That Act authorized the purchasing or building of 4 ships of 44 guns, and 2 of 36 guns, each. From that time until the 3d of March, 1801, the vessels of war of the United States, of various dimensions, were increased, and docks erected for the convenience of repairing them. In 1801 the Navy was reduced to a peace establishment. From 1794 until 1801, therefore, may be considered as the first epoch of the American Navy under the existing national government. This epoch was distinguished by several sea-fights with French ships of war, which terminated decidedly in favor of the United States. By an Act of the 28th of February, 1803, the President was empowered to cause 15 gun-boats to be built. This may be regarded as the commencement of the gun-boat system, which was subsequently extended to the number of 200 or more, and designed to form a line of coast defence. The system, however, grew into disrepute, and was partially abandoned on the 30th of March, 1812, by an Act of which date the gun-boats then in commission were directed to be laid up, and those not in commission to be distributed in the several harbours of the maritime frontier most exposed to attack. By Act of 27th February, 1815, they were ordered to be sold. From 1801 to 1812 may be viewed as the second epoch of the United States Navy; during which took place, in 1802, hostilities with the regency of Tripoli, in Barbary. In this brief conflict the American Navy gained great renown, by the enterprise and energy of the officers and seamen, and daring acts of individual heroism, which excited the admiration and applause of the nations of Europe. By an Act of the 2d of January, 1813, Congress authorized the building of 4 ships of not less than 74 guns, and 6 ships to rate 44 guns; which provision has been in a great measure carried into effect. On the 29th of April, 1816, an Act was passed for the gradual increase of the Navy, by which the sum of one million of dollars per annum was appropriated, for eight years, and authority given for the building of nine 74's and twelve 44's, including one 74 and three 44's of those provided for by Act of 2d of January, 1813. The Act of 29th of April, 1816, likewise makes provision for steam batteries. A Resolution of Congress, of the 3d of March, 1819, prescribes the manner of naming the vessels of the Navy: They are to be named by the Secretary of the Navy, under the direction of the President—the first class, after the States of the Union; second class, after the rivers; third class, after the principal cities and towns; and no two vessels are to bear the same name. The mode adopted for deciding on these names, is by lot.—The third epoch of the American Navy, may be reckoned from the 18th of June, 1812, until the year 1815; which, although short in point of time, was full and resplendent in glorious achievements. Combatting in every sea with the veteran Navy of England, in victory, which was frequent, or in defeat, which was seldom, the skill, the hardihood, the inextinguishable valour, of the American character, were conspicuous, challenging the attention and acclamation of the impartial world, and wringing from Great Britain herself a reluctant acknowledgment of the respectable naval power of the United States. The Marine Corps has earned its due share of glory. This branch of the Naval Establishment is fixed to a state of peace, by the Act of the 3d of March, 1817. The securing of timber for the use of the Navy has been attended to by Congress; navy yards and docks have been added to and improved; and, as occasion has required, small vessels of war have been constructed or purchased, for the security of the revenue, or other objects.]

FLAG OF THE UNITED STATES,

JANUARY 1, 1821.

Thirteen horizontal stripes, alternate red and white. The Union, twenty-three stars, white in a blue field.

Note....One star was added on the fourth of July, 1820, for the new State, Maine, which was admitted into the Union during the last session of Congress.

On the fourth day of July next succeeding the admission of every new State, a star is added to the Union of the flag.

THE CONGRESS.

The Congress of the United States consists of the Senate and House of Representatives; the former composed of 46 in number, the latter of 189, of whom three are Delegates. These members are exclusive of the Senators of Missouri, which, when this work went to press, had not been finally admitted into the Union.

In the same column with the Senators, in this Register, opposite the name of each, is stated the year in which, according to their present classes, they will vacate their seats. There are two Senators from each State. They were originally divided into three classes; and one-third of them are rechosen every second year, for the term of six years. They are chosen by the legislatures of the States. When a new State is admitted into the Union, the Secretary of the Senate puts into the ballot-box two numbers, upon paper of equal size, one of which is drawn out by each of the two Senators from the new State; the Senate having determined, by a previous order, to which class each Senator so drawing the one or the other number shall belong.

The Senate have, upon all the principal nominations by the President of the United States, a voice of advice and consent, or otherwise; in which case it sits with closed doors. The journal of its proceedings is then secret. They have also a vote in the ratification of treaties; in which case it is indispensable that two-thirds of them should consent. The Senate is also a court for the trial of high crimes and misdemeanours, upon impeachments by the House of Representatives.

The President of the Senate has a casting vote only in case of an equal division of the votes of the Senators. The Vice-President of the United States, when he acts as President of the Senate, receives no addition to his pay as Vice-President, which is $5000 per annum. The President pro tempore, during the period of his services, receives $16 per diem for every day he attends.

The Senate is the only perpetual body in the federal government. The perpetuity, however, belongs to it only in its character of Senate; the individual members being renewed, as stated, by successive thirds, biennially

The House of Representatives is composed of a fixed number of members from each State in the Union, each of whom is elected every two years by the people.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives is chosen by a majority of the members of the House, for the term of the Congress to which he belongs as a member of the House. His privileges are the same as those of any other member; and his compensation is $ 16 per diem.

Compensation and Privileges.

Each Senator and Representative receives, for his services, $8 per diem, during the period of his attendance in the Senate or House; and, in case of sickness, this compensation is continued. The same allowance is made to each, for every 20 miles of the usual road in going to and returning from the seat of government.

The Congress must assemble, at least, once in every year, on the first Monday in December, if not otherwise provided by law. The President of the United States may convene them at any time, upon giving forty days notice. Neither House can adjourn for more than three days, without the consent of the other, nor to any other place than that in which the two houses shall be sitting. In case of disagreement about the time, the President of the United States may adjourn them to such time as he thinks proper. The Senate and House each form their own rules; and are, respectively, judges of their own elections.

Both Senators and Representatives are, in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of the peace, privileged from arrest during their attendance at the session of their respective Houses, and in going to, or returning from, the same; and for any speech or debate in either House, they cannot be questioned in any other place. They cannot hold offices under the federal government while acting as members. Bills for raising revenue must originate in the House; and the House, solely, has the power of impeachment.

Members of Congress are prohibited by law, either directly or indirecty, from undertaking, in whole or in part, any contract, &c. with the United States.

Each Senator and Representative has the privilege of franking packets and letters, not exceeding two ounces in weight each, during the session, and for thirty days before and afterwards. The Secretary of the Senate and Clerk of the House have the same privilege. In case of larger documents, a special law exempts them from postage.

COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.

The Committees of the Senate are elected by ballot. Those of the House are appointed by the Speaker.

To these committees, in either House, is confided the initiation of business. They report to the Senate or the House, by bill or otherwise; and, upon such report, the Senate or House go in committee of the whole; in which form of proceeding the whole body of members is regarded as one committee; the president or speaker quits his chair, and some one member is called to preside as the chairman. In this committee a wide latitude of discussion is allowed, and having made progress, or come to some determination on the subject under consideration, it rises and reports progress, asks leave to sit again, or to be discharged from that business, or reports in a conclusive manner, affirmatively or negatively; and the Senate or House grant or refuse the leave or discharge, or confirm or reject the report of the committee. This form of procedure is eminently calculated to prevent precipitation in measures of importance; and it is only in committee of the whole that the president and speaker can take part in the debate.

PAY OF MEMBERS OF CONGRESS.

From the first Congress, in 1789, inclusive, until the 4th of March, 1795, Senators and Representatives received each six dollars per diem, and six dollars for every twenty miles travel. From the 4th of March, 1795, to the 4th March, 1796, Senators rececived 7$ per diem and 7$ for every twenty miles travel, and Representatives only 6$. From the 4th March, 1796, until the 4th Dec. 1815, the per diem was 6$, and the mileage 6$ to Senators and Representatives. From the 4th of Dec. 1815, until the 4th March, 1817, each Senator and Representative received 1500$ per annum, with a proportional deduction for absence from any cause but sickness. The President of the Senate pro tempore, and Speaker of the House, 3,000$ per annum each. From the 4th of March, 1817, the compensation to members of both branches of Congress has been 8$ per diem, and 8$ for every twenty miles travel.

JUDICIARY.

The judicial power of the United States is vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior Courts as Congress, from time to time, establish. The present judicial establishment of the United States consists of a Supreme Court, of twenty-eight District Courts, and seven CircuitCourts; which are thus organized: the Supreme Court is composed of one Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, who hold a Court in the city of Washington annually: besides which, each of these Justices attends in a certain Circuit, comprising two or more Districts, appropriated to each, and, together with the Judge of the District, compose a Circuit Court, which is holden in each District of the Circuit. The District Courts are held, respectively, by the District Judge alone. Appeals are allowed from the District to the Circuit Courts, and from the Circuit to the Supreme Court: and in some cases, where the inconvenience of attending the Court by a Justice of the Supreme Court is very great, the District Courts are invested with Circuit Court powers. Each State is one District, for the purpose of holding District and Circuit Courts therein, with the exception of New-York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Tennessee, each of which is divided into two Districts.—There are, besides, Territorial Courts, which are temporary, and lose that character whenever a Territory becomes a State. In addition to the District Court for the District of Columbia, there is a Circuit Court for that District, which exercises, under the authority of Congress, similar common law and equity jurisdiction as the County Courts of Maryland and Virginia. Each Court has a Clerk, a Public Attorney or Prosecutor, and a Marshal; all of whom are appointed by the Executive of the United States, with the exception of the Clerks, who are appointed by the Courts. The compensation of the Judges is fixed by law; that of the Clerks, Attorneys, and Marshals, consists of fees, and, in a few instances, as it regards Attorneys and Marshals, of a yearly sum of about 200 dollars. It is very difficult to ascertain the amount per annum of the fees received in each case, as the payment of them is frequently procrastinated, and in some cases they are entirely lost.]

PATENTS.

The general law concerning the issuing of Patents, provides for citizens only ; but a subsequent one provides also for aliens who have resided two years, or upwards, in the United States.

In applying for a patent, it is necessary to attend to every legal form. The following is the mode of application.

Law Regulating Patents.

Every inventor, before he presents his petition, shall pay into the Treasury of the United States, thirty dollars, [in notes of the bank of the United States,] for which he will be furnished with duplicate receipts, one of which he shal deliver to the Secretary of State, when he presents his petition; and the money thus paid shall be in full for the sundry services to be performed in the office of the Secretary of State, consequent to such petition. This petition must be addressed to the Secretary of State, and may be in the following or a similar style:

TO THE HON. ——— ———, SECRETARY OF STATE OF THE UNITED STATES:

The petition of A. B. of ———, in the county of ———, and State of ———, respectfully represents:

That your petitioner has invented a new and useful improvement or art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, [or any new and useful improvement in any art, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter] in ———, not known or used before his application, the advantages of which he is desirous of securing to himself and his legal representatives; he therefore prays that letters patent of the United States may be issued, granting unto your petitioner, his heirs, administrators or assigns, the full and exclusive right of making, constructing, using, and vending to others to be used, his said improvement, (art, invention, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, &c.) agreeably to the acts of Congress in such case made and provided; your petitioner having paid thirty dollars into the Treasury of the United States, and complied with all other provisions of the said acts. A. B.

The specification or description of the machine, art, discovery, or invention, must be given in clear and specific terms, designating it from all other inventions; and describing the whole in such a manner, as to comprehend not only the form and construction, if a machine, but also the mode of using the same; and if it be only an improvement on a certain machine, it ought to be so described; and, as this specification enters into, and forms part of the patent, it must be without any references to a model or drawing, and must be signed by the applicant or applicants, before two witnesses. It is material that this be in good language, and correctly written.

The following, or a similar oath or affirmation, taken before any person qualified to administer an oath, by the applicant or applicants, must be subjoined to the specification, if a citizen of the United States:

County of ——— }
State of ——— }

On this ——— day of ———, 18—, before the subscriber, a justice of the peace in and for the said county, personally appeared the aforenamed A. B. and made solemn oath (or affirmation) according to law, that he verily believes himself to be the true and original inventor or discoverer of the art [machine, invention or improvement, composition of matter, &c.] above specified and described, for ——— (mention here the object or intention)———, and that he is a citizen of the United States. ——— ——— Just. Peace.

If not a citizen, the following addition must be made to the declaration, that he verily believes himself to be the true and original inventor or discoverer of the art, &c.: "And that the same hath not, to the best of his knowledge or belief, been known or used, either in this or any foreign country.———." "Also that he hath resided in the United States for two years and upwards."

It is not necessary that the time of residence should immediately precede the application.

If any inventor or discoverer should die intestate, before an application be made for a patent, his legal representatives may apply for the patent, in trust for the heirs at law, otherwise in trust for the devisees.

The specification must be accompanied by a good drawing, in perspective, of the whole machine, or apparatus, where the nature of the case admits of drawings; or with specimens of the ingredients, and of the composition of matter, sufficient in quantity for the purpose of experiment, where the invention is of a composition of matter. And such inventor shall, moreover, deliver a model of his machine, provided the Secretary shall deem such model to be necessary. It is requisite in giving a drawing of the machine, to give also sectional drawings of the interior when the machine is complex; and every drawing should be accompanied with explanatory references. If the machine be complex, a model will likewise be necessary, not only to explain and render it comprehensible to a common capacity, but also to prevent infringements of rights.

The drawings ought not to exceed a quarto size, and if confined to octavo, they would be still better, where it can be done conveniently and distinctly.

The papers must all be directed to the superintendent of the Patent Office, under cover to the Secretary of State, which, of course, renders them free of postage; but if models be sent, their freight or carriage hither must be paid, and before packing them, the name or names of the inventor or inventors should be written thereon, with the name of the machine, and the date.

The Congress, being impressed with a high sense of the value of the inventions of our citizens, have purchased an elegant and extensive building, wherein preparations are made for the accommodation of a very numerous collection of the machines illustrative of American genius; and this MUSEUM OF THE ARTS, it is presumed, will stimulate inventors to send models of the productions of their ingenuity in a style that will rather honour than discredit themselves and our country.

METHOD OF SECURING COPY-RIGHTS.

To secure the copy-rights of books, maps, charts, engravings, prints, &c. it is necessary to comply with the following provisions, contained in the acts of Congress of May 31st, 1790, and April 29th, 1802.

Mode of Securing Copy-rights.

1. Before the publication of any book, map, or chart, a printed title thereof must be deposited in the office of the Clerk of the District Court where the author or proprietor shall reside.

It is the duty of the Clerk of such Court to record such title, in a book to be kept by him for that purpose, in the words following:

"District of ———, to wit: Be it remembered, that on the —— day of ——, in the —— year of the Independence of the United States of America, ——— ———, of the said District, —— deposited in this office, the title of a book, the right whereof —— claim as ——, in the words following, to wit:

[Here insert the title of the book.]

"In conformity to an act of the Congress of the United States, entitled, 'An act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts, and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned:' and also to the act, entitled, 'An act supplementary to the act entitled, an act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts, and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned; and extending the benefits thereof to the arts of designing, etching, and engraving historical and other prints.' ——— ———, Clerk of the District of ———."

And the said Clerk shall give a copy thereof to the said author or proprietor, if required to do so.

For recording the aforesaid title and certificate, the Clerk shall be entitled to receive sixty cents from the said author or proprieter, and sixty cents for every copy under seal, actually given to such author or proprietor, as aforesaid.

2. The author or proprietor shall, within two months from the date of the above certificate, cause a copy thereof to be published in one or more of the newspapers printed in the United States, for the space of four weeks. And he shall, in addition, (if a book or books,) cause a copy of the said record to be inserted at full length, in the title page, or in the page immediately following the title; and if a map, chart, engraving, historical, or other print, he shall cause the following words to be impressed on the face thereof: "Entered, according to act of Congress, the —— day of ———, 18—, by ———, of the State of ———," which must be printed on every such map, chart, or print.

3. The proprietor or author, to be entitled to such copy right, must be a citizen or resident of the United States.

4. He must, also, within six months from the publication of such book, &c. deliver or cause to be delivered to the Secretary of State, a copy thereof, to be preserved in his office.

Mode of Securing Copy-rights.

5. The author or proprietor, or their executors, administrators, or assigns, shall, on complying with all the requisitions of the law, be entitled to the sole right and liberty of printing, publishing, or vending, such book, map, &c. for the space of fourteen years after recording the title thereof in the clerk's office as aforesaid. And if, at the expiration of said term, the author be living, and a citizen of the United States, or a resident therein, the same exclusive right shall be continued to him, in the same manner, for the further term of fourteen years. In the latter case the title must be a second time recorded and published as before directed; and that within six months before the expiration of the first term of fourteen years.

If any other person shall, (after the recording and publishing of any book, map, &c. as aforesaid, and within the times prescribed by law,) print, publish, or import from any foreign kingdom or state, or cause the same to be done; or knowing any book, &c. to be so printed, published, or imported, shall sell, expose to sale, or cause to be sold, any book, &c. (without first obtaining from the proprietor thereof, permission in writing, to be signed in presence of two credible witnesses,) any copy thereof, such offender shall forfeit every copy thereof, and every sheet, being part of the same, to the author or proprietor of such book, map, or chart, who shall forthwith destroy the same. And every such offender shall forfeit and pay fifty cents for every sheet found in his possession, printed, &c. contrary to the true intent and meaning of the law: Provided action shall be commenced against him within one year after the offence shall have been committed. One half of the forfeiture goes to the prosecutor, and the other to the United States.

Any person who shall print or publish any manuscript, without the consent of the author or proprietor, (he being a citizen or resident of the U. States,) given as above, shall be liable to suffer and pay to the said author or proprietor, all damages occasioned by such injury.

The law is the same with regard to historical and other prints; with this exception, that offenders forfeit one dollar for every sheet printed, published, imported, or sold, contrary to law.

Any person not legally entitled to the right of any book, map, chart, historical or other print, who shall insert therein, or impress thereon, that the same has been entered according to act of Congress, or words purporting the same, or that the copy-right thereof has been obtained, shall forfeit and pay one hundred dollars; one half of which shall go to the prosecutor, and the other half to the United States.

Duties on Goods Imported.

Explanations and decisions made by the Treasury Department.

Angora Goat's hair, or wool, being understood to be used, in this country, entirely in the manufacture of hats, has been regarded in the light of undressed furs, and therefore free of duty.

Books, printed, a non-enumerated article.

Balsams, medicinal, as well as cosmetic, have been considered liable to an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent. the new tariff making no discrimination between them.

Belts for swords, with gold or silver thread wove in with the silk or other materials, do not come under the denomination of embroidery, but should be viewed as a non-enumerated article.

Brazil pebble, prepared for spectacles, considered in the light of precious stones, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 7 1-2 per cent.

Blankets, being an exception agreeably to the new tariff to woollen manufactures of all descriptions, and not being otherwise enumerated, are considered liable to an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent.

Brass runners and tips for umbrellas, as other manufactures of brass.

Bootees and laced boots, charged as manufactures of leather.

Corks manufactured, a non-enumerated article.

Clocks and time-pieces, do.

Camel's hair, same as Angora goat's hair or wool.

Carpeting, considered as manufactures of wool, or of which wool is the material of chief value, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 25 per cent. until the 30th of June, 1819 ; after that to pay 20 per cent.

Carpeting, Brussels, not to be considered as stuff goods, but same as preceding.

Colmenar wine, classed as all other wines.

Copper rods, bolts, spikes, or nails, 4 cents per lb.

Copper, in pigs, bars, or plates suited to the sheathing of ships, free.

All other descriptions of copper, except those already particularly mentioned, are considered as non-enumerated, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent. viz.

Copper bottoms cut round and copper bottoms raised at the edge.

Copper in plates or sheets, weighing more than 34 ounces per square foot, commonly called brazier's copper.

[Copper in pigs, bars, or plates, suited to the sheathing of ships, is, agreeably to the new tariff, free of duty. But this indefinite expression of the law leaves room for a variety of practices as to the description of copper suited to the sheathing of ships. It may therefore be well to define what is considered, by this department, as coming under that denomination; in forming a conclusion on which point common usage and the general opinion of experienced persons on the subject have governed. According to this criterion, none but copper in sheets, about 14 inches wide and 48 inches long, and weighing from about 14 to 34 ounces per square foot, can be properly regarded as suited to the sheathing of ships.

Copper bottoms cut round, and copper bottoms raised at the edge, were decided by the Supreme Court of the United States (see Cranch's Reports, vol. 5, p. 286,) not to be manufactures of copper, and, therefore, under the old tariff, not liable to duty; but this description of copper not being suited to the sheathing of ships, is, agreeably to the new tariff, to be considered as a non-enumerated article, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent.]

Embroidery, contemplated in the new tariff as chargeable with an ad valorem duty of 7 1-2 per cent. is considered to mean that kind of work which is done with the needle, and thread of gold or silver. When not done with the needle, or if done with the needle, but with thread, silk, or chenille, &c. it cannot, in the fiscal sense of the word be considered as embroidery.

Feathers for beds, and ornamental feathers, being conceived not to have been intended by the the legislature to be placed on an equality, the former have been considered to be liable to an ad valorem duty of 15, and the latter of 30 per cent.

Gilt chains, seals, and keys, for watches, gilt pins, ear rings, &c. do not, in a fiscal sense of the word, come under the denomination of jewelry, but are embraced by the appropriate term of gilt wares of all kinds, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 20 per cent.

Guernsey frocks and wove pantaloons, used as under garments, are considered in the light of clothing ready made, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent.

Hearth rugs, same as carpeting.

Harps, considered as manufactures of wood, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent.

Iron, in bars and bolts, manufactured by rolling, 150 cents per cwt. Manufactured without rolling, 75 cents per cwt. Tacks, brads, and sprigs, not exceeding 16 oz. per thousand, 5 cents per m. Exceeding 16 oz. per thousand, 4 cents per lb. Nails, 4 cents do. spikes, 3 cents do. anchors, 2 cents do. in pigs, 50 cents per cwt. in castings, 75 cents. do. in sheets, rods, or hoops, 250 cents do.

[Iron in bars, when manufactured by rolling, is liable to a duty of 150 cents per cwt.; and when manufactured by hammering, of 45 cents per cwt. But there has been a difficulty experienced by some of the officers of the customs in distinguishing that manufactured in the one, from that manufactured in other, of the ways mentioned. The following general indications as to the manner of ascertaining the process which may have been observed in the manufacture of iron, have been communicated from this department. A bar of iron, the principal process in the manufacture of which was by rolling, will be smooth and even, and on being carefully measured in different parts of it, will be found to be of the same breadth and thickness throughout. But a bar of iron manufactured by hammering, will be rough and nneven, and on a similar scrutiny, will be found to measure more in some parts of it than in others, and for this reason, that it cannot be drawn out by this process of manufacture, in such precise forms and dimensions as when manufactured by rolling.]

Iron bolts, are understood to be universally manufactured by rolling.

Marble, a non-enumerated article.

Piano fortes, same as harps.

Stockings, silk, are considered as coming under the general classification of clothing ready made, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent.

Stockings, worsted, are to be classed as stockings of wool, and liable to an ad valorem duty of 20 per cent.

Sandal wood, imported in dust or powder, being used exclusively in dying, is considered free of duty.

Spanish brown, or any genus of earths commonly used as paints, is to be regarded in the light of ochre, and liable to a specific duty accordingly.

Tin in plates, considered a non-enumerated article.

Verdegris, being a dying drug, is liable to an ad valorem duty of 7 1-2 per cent. as coming under the classification of dying drugs not subject to other rates of duty.

Valentias and toilenettes, composed of wool and cotton and sometimes contain silk, liable to an ad valorem duty of 25 per cent.

Worsted webbing or stockinet, for pantaloons, is to be regarded in the light of woollen manufactures, or of which wool is the material of chief value, and chargeable with duty accordingly.

Articles free of Duty.

Woollen rugs, mentioned in the new tariff as an exception to woollen manufactures of all descriptions, are a kind of goods used for bed covering, and are considered liable to the same rate of duty as blankets.

Worsted and stuff goods, such as bombazettes, camlets, calimancoes, ratinetts, wildboars, shalloons, moreens, &c. which are composed entirely of wool are subject to an ad valorem duty of 15 per cent.

Sad irons, the handles being made of wrought iron, and being affixed to them after having been cast, and the bottoms and sides being made smooth by grinding after that operation, it has been decided, that sad irons should be considered in the light of manufactures of iron, and pay duty accordingly.

Visiting cards, being composed entirely of what may properly be denominated consolidated paper, it has been decided, that visiting cards are embraced by the classification of paper of every description, and are, therefore, liable to an ad valorem duty of 30 per cent.

NOTE.—The rates of duties here specified are with reference to importations in vessels of the United States. An addition of 10 per cent. is to be made to those rates when the importations are made in vessels not of the United States, except as to such foreign vessels as are, in this respect, placed upon an equality with the vessels of the United States, by treaty stipulations, or by acts of congress.

United States Stocks.

STOCKS are generally bought and sold by the Brokers, at a quarter of one per cent. commission. *The seller appears in person or by attorney, at the Loan Office whence the stock issued, and endorses on the certificate the amount to be transferred, for value received. This endorsed certificate is deposited in the Loan Office, where it stands to the holder's credit; whence a new certificate issues to the assignee, who is credited therefor on the books of the office. If a balance remains to the assignor, a new certificate is made out to him for the amount. Stock is transferrable from one Loan Office to another, on a warrant from the Secretary of the Treasury. The books in the Loan Offices are closed fifteen days next preceding each quarterly payment of interest; and during that time no transfers can be made. Transfers are made without charge. The quarterly payments of interest on the public debt are made on the first days of January, April, July, and October, in every year, at the Bank of the United States, and its branches.

For the payment of the Public Debt, a Sinking Fund has been established, of which the President of the Senate, the Chief Justice of the United States, the Secretaries of State, and of the Treasury, and the Attorney General, are the Commissioners. The fund consists of a fixed annual appropriation. The principal redeemed is cancelled, and never re-issued by Government.

PUBLIC LANDS.

[The National Domain, or Public Lands of the United States, consist of large bodies of territory ceded by the States which, in virtue of their several charters, laid claim to the jurisdiction, and of all the lands held by France under the name of Louisiana, which was purchased from that government, according to the treaty of cession of the 30th of April, 1803.

The usual process of sale of these lands, is, 1st. The extinguishment of the Indian title, which is effected by paying an equivalent in money and goods: 2d. The laying off the territory to which the Indian title has been thus extinguished into land districts, and the establishment of land offices therein. The duties of these land offices are discharged, in each instance, by a register and a receiver of public moneys.

The lands are surveyed before they are offered for sale. They are divided into townships six miles square, which are subdivided into thirty-six sections one mile square, containing each 640 acres; and sold in sections, half sections, quarter sections, and half quarter sections.

Prior to the 1st of July, 1820, sales were made upon credit. But indulgences of this kind having been abused to a very great extent, as well by public officers as by individuals, a debt to the government from the latter having accumulated to the amount of twenty-two millions of dollars, and a defalcation of payments from the receivers of public moneys to the sum of six hundred and seventy-eight thousand dollars, an act was passed on the 24th of April, 1820, which put an end to the system of credit. By that act, all sales, after the 1st of July, 1820, are to be made for cash. Complete payment must be made on the day of purchase. Purchasers at private sale must produce a receipt for the money before entry; and the highest bidder at public sale failing to pay, the tract is to be again offered, and the failing bidder is rendered incapable of purchasing at such sales. By the same act the minimum price of lands is fixed at one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, below which they cannot be disposed of. Lands forfeited for nonpayment must be offered at public before private sale. In case of different application at private sale, for the same tract, the highest bidder is to have a preference.

Due notice is given by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, of the times and places at which sales of the public lands are to take place; and all patents for lands sold or granted by the United States are issued by that officer, upon certificates from the several land offices or military land warrants, in pursuance of various laws of the United States.

The different titles by which lands are held under the authority of the United States, are—

1. Public and private purchases.
2. Virginia military bounties, for services in the Virginia line on continental establishment during the revolutionary war.
3. Grant to Connecticut of the Western Reserve.
4. Purchases under grant to John Cleves Symmes.
5. Purchases under grant to the Ohio Company of Associates.
6. Purchases under grant to the United Brethren.
7. Revolutionary military bounties.
8. Military bounties of the war of 1812.
9. Bounty to refugees from Canada and Nova-Scotia during the revolutionary war.
10. Bounty to Canadian volunteers in the war of 1812.
11. Confirmations of British, French, and Spanish, grants, as adjusted by Boards of Commissioners appointed for the purpose.
12. Special grants, by particular acts of Congress.

The President of the United States may remove, by force, unauthorized settlers on the public lands.

Salt springs and lead mines are reserved from sale; but may be leased by the President: And one section of 640 acres, in each township, is given as a fund for the perpetual support of schools in the township. Besides which, large donations of land have been made in the new States generally, for the maintenance of seminaries of learning.

Warrants for Virginia military bounties issue from the Land Office of the State of Virginia, and are checked at the General Land Office of the United States, before the issuing of patents on them.

Warrants for military bounties, both for revolutionary services and services in the war of 1812, issue from the Department of War.

Those warrants are in the nature of certificates, verifying the claim of the party to a patent for the specified number of acres. The location of the two latter classes of warrants is determined by lot.]

NATIONAL ARMORIES.

ARMORY AT SPRINGFIELD, (Massachusetts.)

The original site of the armory is also a military post, which is a perfectly level, elevated plat, situated about half a mile east of the village, from which there is a gradual ascent, flanked on the north by a deep ravine, and on the south by a less considerable one, with an extensive plain spreading in the rear, the adjacent parts being uncovered, fronting on the brow of the declivity, and commanding an extensive, and beautifully variegated landscape.

At the armory on the hill, there is one brick building, 204 by 32 feet, two stories high, divided into eight rooms, occupied by lock-filers, stockers, and finishers. One brick forging shop, 130 by 32 feet, of one story, containing eleven double forges, used for forging the limbs of locks, breech pins, screw pins, ramrods, and repairing tools. One brick building, 60 by 32 feet, two stories high, with a paved cellar under the whole, used for storing iron, steel, oil, &c.; the first story is occupied as offices for superintendent, master-armorer, clerks, and for storing files, and other materials for the armory. The second story, forming a large and spacious hall, is devoted to religious worship. One building, 100 by 40 feet, two stories high, also of brick, for the depository of arms; two military stores; a carpenter's shop; a file-cutter's shop; a coal and proof house; one brick shop, fire proof, 32 by 16 feet, with three furnaces, one for hardening ramrods, one for nealing work, and one for a brass foundry; two stores for forged work; one for files; and seventeen dwelling houses. One pay-office; ordnance-yard; magazine; block-house, and lumber-yard.

The aforesaid buildings are arranged northerly of the great State road, leading to Boston, bordering on a large flat square piece of ground, fenced and set out with trees, around which is a road about sixty feet wide, leading to the several dwelling-houses, occupied by the officers and workmen. The whole assuming a handsome and regular appearance.

The water works are situated about one mile southerly of the arsenal, in three different sites, denominated the upper, middle, and lower water shops, on an excellent stream, called mill river, which falls into the Connecticut, and exhibits, in a little distance, the greatest assemblage of mills, and other water works, to be found in the State. The whole comprises five workshops, twenty-six forges, thirteen trip-hammers, eighteen water wheels, eight coal houses, three stores, and five dwelling houses.

The upper works have one shop, 65 by 32 feet, two stories high, built of stone and brick; the lower story contains three water-wheels, one for polishing, and boring, and milling bayonets, and two for grinding barrels, lock plates, mounting, and bayonets. The upper story contains two rooms, one for polishers of locks, barrels, mounting rods, and finishing boring, &c. the other for drilling locks, barrels, &c. milling and slitting screw pins, making screws and swivels, milling tumblers, turning bayonet sockets, &c. One shop 75 by 30 feet, two stories high, composed of stone and brick; the lower story contains four water-wheels, viz. one for trip-hammers, one for blowing bellows, one for smooth boring barrels, and one to operate the machinery in the second story; four forges, one for the trip-hammer, two for welding barrels, and one for other forging; four machines for smooth boring, and one for counter-boring barrels. The second story contains four engines for turning musket barrels, with the flats and oval at the breech; one lathe for milling cock pins, and the heads of ramrods; and three machines for jointing and turning musket stocks, and letting in the barrels.

The middle works have one stone shop, 84 by 45 feet, one story high, covered with tin, which contains five water-wheels; attached to one, are three, and to another, four trip-hammers, for welding barrels, which will strike four hundred blows in a minute each: the whole three may go at the same time, and each one may be stopped at pleasure; four wheels for trip-hammers, one for rough boring barrels; ten forges, (bellows blown by water,) used for trip-hammers, barrel welding, forging bayonets, and repairing tools. One stone shop, 50 by 23 feet, of one story, which also contains three water-wheels for three trip-hammers; five forges, three for trip-hammers, and two for forging bayonets. One dwelling house, one store, two coal houses, and a carpenter's shop.

At the lower works, there is one shop of 55 by 32 feet, two stories high: the lower of hewn stone, the upper of brick: the lower story contains three water-wheels and four forges, one wheel for trip-hammers, one for grinding ram-rods and mounting, and one for polishing. The forges are occupied for trip-hammers, and by mounting forges. The upper room is used by mounting filers, polishers, and for trimming, punching, and drilling. One dwelling house, store, and coal house. The United States also own a valuable mill seat, a few rods above this shop, where there is a saw-mill, and one building lately erected, 30 feet square, of one story, calculated for a forge for working over scraps, borings, turnings, and other refuse iron. One building,

Springfield Armory.

24 by 40 feet, two stories, intended for grinding and polishing mounting.

In this establishment are employed from two hundred and forty, to two hundred and fifty workmen, who complete, on an average, about forty-five muskets daily. The works may be increased to almost any extent. The water privileges already owned by the United States, will warrant the extension to thirty thousand stands annually. This extensive manufactory is under the direction of a principal,* who has the chief management of the business of the armoury; provides, contracts for, and purchases all stock, tools, and materials necessary for manufacturing arms; engages the workmen, determines their wages, and prescribes the necessary regulations for the local government of the establishment. To aid him in the important duties of the armory, there is allowed a master-armorer, who manages the mechanical operations, and is held accountable for all stock, tools, and materials, put under his charge for the use of the armory, and for the correct workmanship of the muskets. And a paymaster and store-keeper, whose duty it is to liquidate and pay all debts, contracted by the superintendent, for the armory; and receive the finished arms, for which he is held accountable. Each of the above officers are allowed a clerk, to aid in keeping their accounts.

Each individual puts on the work he executes, his own private mark, as do the inspectors, when they examine and approve of the various parts of the muskets. Thus, in case of any defect, the delinquent may readily be found. Monthly returns of work are made to the Superintendent, from which the monthly pay roll is made. The establishment of this armory, was by act of Congress, passed in 1794; and, in 1795, the work commenced with about forty hands. At the end of December, 1819, there had been completed in this manufactory, 152,559 new muskets; 1,202 new carbines; and 46,414 muskets repaired, (equal to 12,000 new muskets.) The amount of purchase money, for land, mill seats, and for erecting water-shops, machinery, work-shops, stores, and buildings of every description, and permanent repairs, is estimated at 166,136 dollars. The other expenses for the above period, exclusive of stock, and parts of work on hand, amounts to 1,906,440 dollars. Amount of stock, and parts of the muskets on hand, 31st December, 1819, exceeded 100,000 dollars. Total amount of expenditures, from the commencement of the works to the 31st December, 1819, is 2,072,576 dollars.

Harper's Ferry Armory.

ARMORY AT HARPER'S FERRY.

The National Armory, at Harper's Ferry, is situated on a point of land formed by the junction of the rivers Potomac and Shenandoah. The site was purchased in the year 1796, contains about 400 acres, and cost $17,000. The buildings were commenced in 1798, and went into operation in 1800. The water for the use of the principal part of the works is brought from the Potomac by a canal, about 1 1-4 miles in length, at the head of which a dam is built across the river of very large stone. There is, also, a part of the works situated about a half mile up the Shenandoah, and the water for their use is taken from that river. The following are the Public Buildings.

PENSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES.

[By a resolution of the 7th of June, 1785, the old Congress recommended to the several States the making of provision for the officers, soldiers, and seamen, who had been disabled in the service of the United States. Immediately after the organization of the present government the subject was attended to by the new Congress, and provision made, from time to time, for that class of citizens, until the 10th of April, 1806, when a general law was passed, authorizing revolutionary soldiers and seamen, including officers, disabled in the line of duty in actual service, to be placed on the pension list, upon a statement from the District Judge, and a report of the same by the Secretary of War to Congress for its previous sanction. By act of 25th April, 1808, the provisions of the act of 10th April, 1806, were extended to officers and soldiers of the army and militia, and volunteer corps, disabled since the revolutionary war. By act of 2d of August, 1813, widows and orphans of the militia and volunteers, dying of wounds received in service, became entitled to half the monthly pay of the deceased for five years, to cease on the death or intermarriage of the widow and death of the children. By the same act, the officers and soldiers of the militia and volunteers in service, being invalids, were to receive pensions, according to the act of 10th April, 1806. An act of the 16th of April, 1816, makes further provision in relation to the same object, as well as for a commutation of bounty land for half pay to widows and orphans; And by the 3d section of the act of 24th April, 1816, all the laws and regulations for admitting officers and soldiers of the reugular army on the pension roll, were made equally applicable to officers and soldiers of the militia whilst in service. Further regulations were established on the subject by act of 3d March, 1817, chiefly relating to the equalizing the half pay to widows and orphans, as allowed under different laws. At length, on the 18th of March, 1818, an act was passed authorizing all persons who had served in the revolutionary war, in the land or naval service, and for as short a time as nine months, they being in indigent circumstances, to be placed on the pension list by the Secretary of War, without particular reference to Congress, at a certain rate of pension, for life. A wide field having been thus opened for applications, the benevolent intentions of the government were abused to such an extent as to render a legislative corrective necessary. The act of 1st May, 1820, was accordingly passed, and rules laid down, under which, whilst the really indigent and suffering officers, soldiers, and seamen of the revolution, feel the bounty of gratitude from the nation, those who are not truly in want of it, but seem disposed to represent themselves as in impoverished circumstances, have been stricken from the roll of pensioners.]

PRIVATEER PENSIONS.

The Privateer Pension Fund was created by an act of Congress, passed on the 26th day of June, 1812; it is constituted by a deduction of two per centum on the nett amount of prize money, arising from captured vessels and cargoes; and also on the salvage of vessels recaptured by private armed vessels of the United States. The proceeds of those deductions have been invested in the United States' stock, and the fund, thus formed, has as yet proved sufficient to afford relief to all who were disabled, and to the widows and orphans of those who were slain or lost in private armed vessels.

The number of persons disabled who receive pensions from the fund, is one hundred and two; and pensions have also been granted to the widows or orphans of one hundred and seventy-one persons, who were slain or lost in private armed vessels during the late conflict with Great Britain.

The pensions of persons disabled, continue during the disability; and those of widows or orphans, for the term of ten years.

Rates of Postage, &c.

This establishment is under the superintendence of a Post Master General, who is aided in the discharge of its duties by two Assistants. He has the sole appointment of all deputy-post masters throughout the United States; the making of all contracts for carrying the mail; and, in brief, the control, according to law, of every thing relating to the institution. The revenue arising from the General Post Office has, for the most part, been expended upon the extension and improvement of the establishment, by which means the accommodation of the mail conveyance for letters, newspapers, pamphlets, &c. has, in a most extraordinary degree, been extended to the inhabitants of every part of the Union, even to the most remote territorial settlements.

Improvements in 1820.

CITY OF WASHINGTON.

In the National Calendar for 1820, a full and accurate description of the city will be found. During the year 1820, it appears by the Annual Statement of Mr. John Sessford, that the following improvements have been made :—

A Catholic Church, and a Presbyterian Church have been built; an Episcopalian Church and a Presbyterian Church have been considerably enlarged; a Circus has been erected; and a City Hall, a Masonic Hall, and a Theatre, begun. A Spring, discharging about forty gallons of water a minute, has, at an expense of two thousand dollars, been prepared to supply a part of the city with water. Upwards of 12,000 running feet of brick pavement, have been laid in the second and third Wards.

The last assessment of real and personal property was $6,405,125; the population amounted to 13,322; and the total number of dwelling houses 2,141.

Adjoining the city, a brick edifice for a College, four stories high, and 117 feet long, by 47 wide, is under roof. This building is on elevated ground, nearly north of the President's house, and commands an extensive prospect, embracing the city, Georgetown, Alexandria, the Potomac river, &c.

Election, &c.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT.

[An election of President and Vice-President of the United States took place on the first Wednesday of December, 1820. The following is a list of the electors, and a statement of the mode in which they have been chosen, in each of the States of the Union, collected from the public prints; annexed to which is a table, showing the persons for whom they voted, as far as the votes were known when this Calendar was put to press. Certified copies of the votes must have been delivered to the President of the Senate, at the City of Washington, before the first Wednesday (the 3d) of January, 1821, by persons appointed by the electors for that purpose, which persons are allowed twenty-five cents for every mile, by the most usual road, they have travelled in fulfilling this duty. Congress must be in session on the second Wednesday (the 14th) of February, 1821, on which day the certificates of the votes of the electors are to be opened, by the President of the Senate, in the presence of the Senate and House of Representatives, and the votes counted. The President and Vice-President will be then declared, for the four years succeeding the 3d of March, 1821. On the 4th day of March the President will be sworn into office. The oath is usually administered by the Chief Justice of the United States, in the Capitol.]

EMIGRATION TO THE UNITED STATES.

[On the 2d of March, 1819, Congress passed "An Act regulating Passenger Ships and Vessels." The principal object of this law was to secure to passengers from foreign countries, whilst on ship-board, an ample supply of provisions and water, and sufficient room to render them comfortable, during the passage. It also enables the Government to ascertain the number and description of persons arriving in the United States, by compelling the captain or master of every vessel, entering from foreign places, to deliver lists of Passengers to the Collectors of the Customs, which lists must designate the age, sex, and occupation of each passenger, together with the country to which he or she belongs, and that of which it is their intention to become inhabitants. From returns of those lists we have been enabled to make the following Abstract.

The Abstract would be more perfect, if there had been time to discriminate the respective countries whence the passengers came, those whereof they have declared their intentions of becoming residents, and the different ages of the several persons. Time preventing us from going so minutely into the account, we must content ourselves with adverting generally to the particulars not specifically noted.

The countries to which the passengers have reported themselves as belonging, are chiefly Great Britain, Ireland, Germany, and France. Many belong to the United States, and were returning home, which has tended to swell the number in the class of "Merchants." Their declared intended places of residence, are, for the most part, the United States at large, which, doubtless, is much the most accurate; but there are a considerable number of French and Germans who have indicated Louisiana as their resting place, and a number of Germans have pointed out Kentucky. A very few have stated their residence in the United States to be but t mporary; and there are some persons who appear to have been merely passing to and from Canada. As to the ages of the passengers, the fact may be inferred from the circumstance of their thus voyaging.—Scarcely any are very old; the very young seem to be the children of emigrating families; and the great majority of the whole are in the vigour of life.

They are classed below with a view to the productive and useful talents which they bring with them; for these talents, at this time, are the only equivalent, except moneyed capital, which the American community can receive for the great advantages which are allowed to foreigners in the United States. Mere numbers can never be an object.]

DEATHS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The following table of deaths in Boston, New-York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Charleston, during the year 1819, has been compiled from publications by the board of health in each of those places. The person who compiled it is not a medical man, and does not, therefore, undertake to correct what he thinks an irregularity of the faculty in reporting the names of diseases. At Boston, for instance, the physician reports a case of tetanus, whilst, in the more southern cities, the same malady is denominated locked-jaw. A similar diversity of expression occurs, it is believed, in several instances; which increases the list of disorders, without there being, in the cases in question, any variety in the disease.

What forcibly strikes the mind on an examination of the table, is the large amount of deaths by consumption. It exceeds a seventh of the whole number. Nor does climate seem to be a material circumstance in arresting or accelerating the progress of complaint; for, in all the cities mentioned, it takes precedence of every other disorder. As it concerns Charleston, it is, nevertheless, proper to state, that it is said the deaths by consumption there are generally of strangers who repaired thither for the benefit of their health. A general observation may be here allowed, that heat is more fatal to the life of civilized man than cold. In a state of nature the reverse is probably the fact. This would arise from civilized man's being enabled to temper the cold by regular food and warm raiment; whereas, from the heat he can, ordinarily, find no constant refuge. To uncivilized men, destitute, for a great portion of the year, of an ample supply of provisions and clothing, and who are, for the most part, not pampered by luxurious living or relaxed by intemperance, heat, on the contrary, affords comfort and exhilaration.

As it regards health, the year, it is conceived, should be divided into two seasons instead of four; that is to say, into the hot and the cold—for moisture is common to both in the United States; and individuals should dress accordingly. Ideas founded upon such a division of the year, and steadily acted upon in every rank of life, might tend to diminish the number of deaths by consumption. The cold season, on the sea coast of the Union, may be counted from November to May, inclusive; and the hot season from June to October, inclusive. The number of deaths, it will be perceived, are the most numerous about the month of August, and the least so about the month of February. In this estimate, allusion is had chiefly to the populous cities.

It does not seem that extreme old age is peculiar either to the northern, middle, or southern States. It may be inferred, nevertheless, that particular constitutions, such as are more dry than humid, are better preserved, at a very advanced period of life, in a warm than in a cold climate.

HISTORICAL REVIEW.

There has been no period, since the year 1789, when the foreign relations of the United States have apparently been so passive as at the present moment.

The chief questions known to be pending with Great Britain, are those concerning the slave-trade, the commercial intercourse with her colonies, and the indemnity claimed for slaves carried off contrary to the provision of the first article of the treaty of Ghent. What concerns the slave-trade cannot be viewed as belonging particularly to American affairs, because it is equally interesting to the whole human race. Hitherto there appears to have been no definitive arrangement between the two nations on the subject. The question of colonial commerce is at issue, by regulations and countervailing laws, on the one side and on the other, prohibiting intercourse, except in British or reciprocally in American vessels, between the ports of the United States and those of Great Britain in the West-Indies and on and near this continent. We are in possession of no facts whereupon to form an opinion as to the time or manner in which the experiment will terminate, or from which to estimate the positive advantages or disadvantages of such a course of policy. As to the slaves taken away, the two governments being unable to agree with respect to the intention of each, as expressed in the words of the treaty, the matter has been referred to the emperor of Russia, before whom it is now depending, as arbiter in the case. The adjustment of boundaries goes slowly on.

Upon France, the United States have still the weighty demands which existed against the emperor Napoleon, for his seizures and confiscations of American property under several arbitrary and unlawful decrees. These demands are not only founded in equity, and sustained by the principle that a nation, being a permanent body, is at all times answerable for the acts of its government, which may vary; but they are supported by treaties, made in 1814 and 1815, wherein the sovereigns of Europe have stipulated the amount of their respective reclamations for spoliations and expenses committed and sustained during the wars which prevailed from 1790 to 1815. The king of France himself is a party to these treaties, by which he has sanctioned the justice of the American claims. During the past year the trade between the United States and France has been somewhat disquieted by an act of Congress of the 15th of May, 1820, imposing a duty of eighteen dollars per ton on French vessels entering our ports. This law was passed in consequence of representations by respectable American merchants, that the duties of tonnage levied in France upon American bottoms, exceeded, in so great a degree, those levied on French vessels, that the difference amounted almost to an exclusion of the former from the benefits of the carrying trade between the two countries. The act of the 15th of May fixed the amount of duty at the sum mentioned, upon the persuasion that it would be nothing more than an equalization of the duties, in the ports of France and those of the United States, on their respective merchantmen. On a close inspection of this point, however, it is supposed, by intelligent men, that the American tonnage may, in some measure, exceed that of France which it was meant to countervail. The law of Congress was to take effect on the first day of July, which, as it was enacted on the 15th of May, allowed but forty-five days for its communication to the French European merchants, and this has been held not to have been a sufficient length of time to enable them to compute the probable profits and losses of their commercial adventures under their liability to the payment of this additional duty. The government of the United States certainly did not resort to this proceeding with any feeling of hostility to that of France or to the French nation. Indeed, the same law which imposes the new duty, holds out the offer of a reciprocal arrangement for an equalization of duties between the parties, according to the provisions of a previous act of Congress of the 3d of March, 1815. The public authorities of France, nevertheless, did not receive the intelligence of the passage of the act of the 15th of May, 1820, in an amicable temper. Whether it was from keenness of sensibility at the amount of the tonnage duty; for the minister of the United States at Paris had apprised the French minister of foreign affairs of the likelihood that Congress would have recourse to a countervailing duty of some kind; or dissatisfaction at the shortness of the time from the passage to the operation of the act; or that the pride of the French government was touched at what it may have conceived to be an attempt to constrain it to adopt the reciprocal equalization of duties proposed in the law of the 15th of March, 1815; or whether any or all of these considerations influenced the cabinet of Paris, it cannot be doubted that the French ministry received the information of the laying on of the new duty with a degree of asperity which was scarcely endeavored to be concealed, and which was soon embodied in royal decrees evincing something of a vindictive disposition. On the 26th of July, 1820, the king issued two ordinances: The first of these imposed a special duty, to be collected immediately, of ninety francs, or 16 dolls. 87 1-2 cents, per ton, on vessels of the United States entering the ports of the kingdom, without diminution of an additional tenth, which had been previously levied as a discrimination in favor of French vessels. From this duty are excepted American vessels arriving in the ports France in ballast, and such vessels as had left the ports of the Union, directly for a port of France, prior to the 15th of June, at which date it was presumed the act of the 15th of May would have been known in every part of the United States The duty is to cease as soon as official information has been received in France that the act of Congress of the 15th of May, 1820, has been repealed. The second ordinance of the king allows a bounty, of ten francs, or one dollar eighty-seven and a half cents, per hundred kilogrammes, or about two hundred and twenty pounds, upon cottons, the product of the two Americas, shipped in the French colonies, or in foreign ports or colonies situated out of Europe, being others than those of the United States, and conveyed to France in French bottoms. This bounty was to commence on the 15th of Oct. 1820, and end on the 31st of March, 1821, and was extended to American cottons introduced into France before the 15th of October, in French vessels which had paid, in the ports of the United States, the tonnage duty imposed by the act of Congress of the 15th of May, 1820. It is understood that the French ministry have also contended that the provisions of that act were a violation of the eighth article of the treaty of Paris, of the 30th of April, 1803. The seventh article of this treaty had provided, that French ships, coming directly from France or any of her colonies, loaded only with the produce or manufactures of France and her colonies, should be admitted in the port of New-Orleans, and in all other legal ports of entry within the ceded territory of Louisiana, during the space of twelve years, without being subject to any other or greater duty on merchandise, or other or greater tonnage, than those paid by citizens of the United States. These twelve years expired on the 26th of March, 1816. The eighth article of the treaty provides, that, forever after the expiration of the twelve years, the ships of France shall be treated upon the footing of the most favored nation in the ports of the territory ceded. It is upon the expression, footing of the most favored nation, that this alleged violation is asserted ; the French government insisting, as it has been said, that, according to the stipulation of the treaty, the United States cannot compel French ships, entering the ports of Louisiana with the merchandise of France, to pay higher duties than other foreign vessels entering the same ports. The whole question of imputed violation turns upon the interpretation of the words employed, which, in both the French and English copies of the treaty, exactly correspond. The phraseology of the former is, "sur le pied de la nation la plus favorisée ;" which is rendered, in English, "upon the footing of the most favored nation." The footing evidently includes the equivalent for the favor, as well as the favor itself. But the French ministry, by the pretension which it has been asserted they have advanced, withhold the equivalent whilst they insist upon the favor. To illustrate this affair in a brief manner, we may refer to the reciprocity of navigation which subsists between the United States and Great Britain, in virtue of the convention of London of the 3d of July, 1815. By that instrument British vessels are admitted into our ports upon paying the same duties that are paid by American vessels. The equivalent for this favor is a like favor to vessels of the United States trading to the European ports of Great Britain. Such is the footing upon which the American and British shipping interests stand with regard to each other; and, ever since the 3d of March, 1815, the United States have offered to place the navigation of France on the same footing. The French government, however, has hitherto declined accepting the offer, by steadily refusing to grant the equivalent. A perfect reciprocity, whereby the skill and activity of the merchants and mariners of two enlightened nations are left to a fair and honorable competition, would seem to admit of no sort of objection. What, therefore, is to be inferred from the reluctance which France manifests in this particular? Either the cabinet of Paris does not comprehend the true interests of France; or the French ministry are conscious of the superior maritime enterprize, vigor, and dexterity, of the Americans. There is not the least danger of any thing like a serious dispute arising out of the present misunderstanding on commercial points between the two countries. The United States will be lenient with regard to their strong claims to indemnity for the confiscations which took place during the reign of Napoleon; France will abandon the absurd pretension under the treaty of 1803; and the two governments will, doubtless, after amicable discussions, determine upon some common measure of interest, as the basis of a permanent arrangement, wherein mutual advantages may be concentrated without injury to either party. Above all, it is to be hoped that France will not interlock herself with Spain, either openly or covertly, so as to embarrass and irritate negotiation, by producing further procrastination or diplomatic obliquity in that quarter. This brings us to the topic of Spanish Affairs.

Another year has elapsed, and the treaty concluded on the 22d of February, 1819, has not appeared before the American public in a ratified form. Whilst this page is passing from under the press, it is not improbable that it may arrive from Madrid in some shape; in which case it will, doubtless, be again submitted to Congress. But the lengthened delay has considerably disappointed the general expectation. What we know with certainty is, that Gen. Vives reached the City of Washington in April of the past year, in the character of minister of Spain, and commenced negotiations in relation to the treaty, which were vague and fruitless; that immediately afterwards information came to hand of a political revolution having occurred among the Spaniards; that the President, considering the unsettled condition of the Spanish nation and government, and the great desire of the states of Europe for universal peace, after so many and such long wars, recommended forbearance to the congress; that General Vives declared himself in a state of suspension on the topic of the treaty until he could procure instructions from the newly modelled government of Spain; that congress adjourned in May, without adopting any measures on the subject; and that, the new constitution of Spain requiring the consent of the cortes to any alienation of the territory of the monarchy, the treaty ceding Florida to the United States was officially communicated to that body by the Spanish Secretary of State on the 11th of July, 1820. How the affair will eventuate, we have no solid grounds upon which to form an opinion. Whether the cortes will prove more complaisant than the king? Whether they will consent to its ratification, in its original, or in a modified, form? Whether the President and Senate of the United States will now accept it? Whether they will accept it with any, the least, modification rendering it more favorable to Spain? are questions which, writing, as we do, without a full knowledge of all the circumstances incident to the transaction, can be answered only by conjectures, in which it would be frivolous to indulge.

With Spanish America the ties of friendship appear to be strengthening. Don Manuel Torres, a prudent and highly respectable gentleman, continues to represent the Venezuelan government or Republic of Colombia in the United States. He resides, for the chief part of his time, in Philadelphia, but occasionally visits Washington, where we believe he is uniformly received in a kind and attentive manner by the public authorities. It is understood that the government of the United States maintains informal agencies in several of the revolutionary Spanish provinces; the governments of which, however, appear to be still unsettled. At Buenos Ayres, in particular, a spirit of anarchy, during the past year, has so far prevailed as to present nothing for contemplation but an incessant change of rulers. War continues to rage in Venezuela. Chile alone, under a self-constituted government, enjoys repose from military operations; and even menaces the neighboring vice-royalty of Peru with invasion. In truth, it is much to be feared that the fine regions of South-America are yet doomed to witness vast sufferings before the inhabitants will have firmly established their independence and freedom.

On the whole, the foreign relations of the United States afford the most pacific aspect. The bosom of Europe, notwithstanding, is far from being tranquil. A general fermentation prevails among the people of every European nation, excepting those of Austria, included in a line drawn along the river Niemen, through the Baltic and North seas, comprehending Great Britain, along the shores of the Atlantic ocean, to the Straits of Gibraltar, and thence to the Adriatic sea. The grand cause of all this commotion is to be found in the anomalous nature of the governments which exist on that portion of the globe. Out of the ruins of the Roman empire grew the feudal system, which gave absolute command to chieftains, and assigned bondage and blind obedience to the multitude. Industry and knowledge have worked their way, from generation to generation, through the shackles of the feudal system, which have been in a great degree broken. Kings and nobles would fain rivet them again; but the people are obviously becoming too enlightened and powerful for despotism to flourish much longer; and they boldly claim a voice in public affairs, through the happily invented medium of the Representative system, which must inevitably, over the whole of Europe, be established upon the ruins of the feudal system. Men, corrupted by power, do not part with it easily; hence the sovereigns of Europe employ armies to retain privileges derived from the system of feudality. These armies have themselves, however, in several instances, in the course of the year 1820, proved faithless to despotism, which, deprived of that support, and of the aid formerly derived from the improper influence of the clergy, has, in Spain, in Portugal, and in Naples, become forlorn and helpless; and has been compelled to acquiesce in the reasonable demands of the people. Whether this modern desertion of kings by the military proceeds from increasing knowledge among men of that class, and consequent indignation at the wretched condition of their fellow subjects, or from their having been poorly and irregularly paid, there are not materials within our reach necessary to the formation of a proper judgment: nor is it desirable that soldiers should be accustomed to make revolutions in government; although, in desperate cases, their aid is certainly not to be contemned. If despots employ them to enslave their subjects, those subjects may very fairly use them to reduce their tyrants to a rational exercise of authority. In the United States the representative system has apparently attained perfection. It is a system not likely to be subverted, because it contains within itself a principle of perpetual renovation; and in this respect it corresponds with nature herself, in which the principles of reproduction and regeneration are constant; decaying and corrupted bodies being regularly discarded and replaced by fresh and pure ones. In this manner does the representative system operate in the political world: feeble and vicious rulers are displaced by popular elections, and more virtuous persons are chosen to succeed them. Great Britain, who has been foremost among the European nations in breaking some great links of the feudal chain, was not so fortunate, at the revolution in 1688, as to substitute for it a system purely representative. The hereditary ingredient in her constitution, as exemplified in the succession of kings and nobles, is an imperfection which has repressed the salutary operation of that small portion of the representative system which exists in the House of Commons. Whatever is stable in its nature, will always, in a long course of years, triumph over that which is fluctuating The king, in whom there is an imperishable family interest, always acting for its own benefit and supremacy, has, therefore, succeeded in corrupting the popular branch of parliament, which is made up of numerous individual, varying, and transient interests. The final effect will be, that Great Britain must undergo another political revolution; for the representative principle has now gained so much strength that it will constantly vie with the remaining portion of the feudal principle until the latter becomes wholly extinct. The spirits of the two systems are as opposite as darkness and light; and wherever the one appears in great force, the other must depart. Particular circumstances may favor the one or the other for a time, and give duration to those conflicts for superiority which are demonstrated by the efforts of the people to render themselves free, and the exertions of their tyrants to suppress those efforts; but in the end the representative system must entirely succeed, because it has decided advantages as to time and numbers.

From this digression we turn, with pleasure, to the domestic concerns of the United States. Of the evils which afflict mankind every where, and for which there is no genuine consolation but in the practice of virtue, and no final refuge but in the tomb and beyond it, the inhabitants of the American Union experience but a very small portion, compared with those which are endured by the people of other countries. The Americans, in fact, enjoy liberty of every kind; and partake of the fruits of the earth to satiety. They scarcely feel the weight of government in any of the various circumstances of life. It would seem singular, if history did not prove it to have been always the case, that, in the midst of so many blessings, the inhabitants of the United States should desire to bring down the hand of government upon them. Men who look to government for every thing of happiness in society, and charge it with every thing of misery, resemble the victims of astrology, who trust more to the stars than to their own understandings and good conduct. The real use of government is to protect the community from foreign aggression, and to preserve order among the citizens, so that individuals may reap in peace the products of their own labor and prudence. In such a situation, man is as free as he can be; and, injuring no one, may pursue the road to prosperity according to his own view of things. But there are persons who are not satisfied with this condition of life; and who place their felicity in an abundance of money, which they expect government to procure for them.

Money is a subject which is much talked of, and little understood. There are three circumstances, which should be particularly adverted to, in order to a clear comprehension of it. The first of these is, that, to constitute good money, every piece of it should cost as much labor in the construction as it represents in value. The precious metals possess this quality; and hence the preference due to them, when coined, as a currency, over paper. The second circumstance is, as it relates to the utility of money, which is twofold: primarily, as an indispensable measure of value; in which character it is of no importance whether there be much or little in circulation, for, in the one case and the other, the difference would only be the counting, in the transaction of business, a larger or smaller number of pieces: and secondarily, as it respects its agency in giving activity to industry; in which character the amount to be put into circulation should be well considered; for it is in passing through many hands, until it finds its level, that money, as an exciting agent, swells the product of labor. When it has found that level, its utility, in this point of view, ceases. And thus we come to the third circumstance, which is of the highest importance. This circumstance is, the proportion between the quantity of money which has found its level, and is already in circulation, and the amount which, at any time, it is proposed to add to it. As the proportion of the one is to the other, such is the proportion of the quantum of excitement to industry by the additional sum of money thrown into circulation. If the community are gorged with money, it is not a small additional amount that will move men to further labor. The spirit of industry, like the human frame, loses its excitability by being frequently surcharged with stimulants. The one may be worn out as well as the other; and both may be restored to health by restraining the application of the stimulating material within reasonable limits.

Home Affairs—Missouri—Election of President.

During the year 1820, the United States have made considerable advances towards the restoration of a healthy circulating medium. In one or more of the states mistaken measures have been adopted in relation to this object; but like all others of the same kind, they will eventually work their own cure. They are the remnants of a disease which, a year or two ago, threatened the country at large with much calamity. A circulating medium of diminished amount, and food and clothing at a reduced price, indicate the gradual return of the American community to a prosperous condition: As to those who have speculated, and smart under their speculations, they must yield to the fate which they have courted. He who gambles for wealth must take the chances of the game at which he plays.

The principal domestic topic that has occupied the attention of the people of the United States for the year past, is that which concerns the admission of Missouri into the Union as a state. Under an act of Congress passed on the 6th of March, 1820, the people of that territory were authorized to form a constitution and state government; which they did, and chose senators and elected a representative to Congress, who have arrived at Washington, with a view of taking their seats; from doing which they have been prevented, by the delay of the Congress in admitting Missouri into the Union, on the ground that the constitution formed is contrary to a provision in the constitution of the United States. The objectionable feature in the state constitution is a clause, making it the duty of the legislature of Missouri to enact a law prohibiting free people of color from going into or residing within the limits of the new state. This is thought, by some persons, to be in direct opposition to that provision of the federal constitution, which declares that the citizens of each state shall be entitled to all the privileges and immunities of citizens in the several States. It is not intended here to enter into this dispute. We shall merely mention, that it connects itself intimately with the discussion of the slave question, which excited so many angry feelings during the first session of the sixteenth Congress, and which was determined by restricting slavery within the southern limits of a line drawn along 30 minutes north of 36 degrees of northern latitude.

The choice of a President of the United States, which has just taken place, although a highly interesting exercise of the right of suffrage by the people, has passed off with but little clamor. It has resulted in the almost unanimous re-election of James Monroe, who has been more fortunate than most of his predecessors in mellowing public opinion in his favor. It must, in reality, be confessed, that this gentleman's administration has been hitherto unstained by any corrupt or vicious act; and that he well merits the esteem of his fellow citizens at large. Let us briefly review his conduct for the current four years.

Home Affairs—Mr. Monroe's Administration.

James Monroe came into the office of President on the 4th of March, 1817; at which period he found the nation in debt, to the amount of about one hundred and fifteen millions of dollars. Notwithstanding this large sum of debt, he recommended a repeal of the internal duties, and the repeal immediately took place; and he proposed, what had never been done before, the extension of pecuniary relief to the surviving officers, soldiers and seamen, of the revolutionary army and navy, who might be in circumstances requiring such relief. An act to that effect was, in consequence, passed in 1818. These two acts are specially referred to, because the one operated to the reduction of the revenue, whilst the other added to the expenditure of government. It must be recollected, also, that the treasury was then subject to large demands for arrearages of every kind, accrued from the expenses of the late conflict with Great Britain.

The receipts into the Treasury of the United States, from every source, for the current four years, have been ascertained and estimated in the following manner:—

For 1817.....	$24,365,227 34
1818.....	26,095,200 65
1819.....	21,435,700 69
1820.....	20,249,637 49
	$92,145,766 17

Of these receipts, there have been appropriated, according to law, during those four years—

For the redemption of the Public Debt, ...	$49,000,000
Payment of Revolutionary Pensions, ...	4,774,940
Payment of Militia, &c. during the war, ..	3,191,000
Building Custom Houses and Warehouses,	300,000
Payment of a judgment against the Collector of New York,.....	130,000
Gradual Increase of the Navy,.....	4,000,000
	$61,395,940

The preceding items of expenditure have been selected, in addition to the payments on account of the public debt, because they do not belong to the ordinary class of disbursements. There are a number of similar ones, which would greatly increase the amount, and which may be found in the Acts of Congress passed from 1817 to 1821. Nor do we stop to particularize the unusually large sums appropriated, during the same four years, for fortifications, for the public buildings, and for various objects connected with the common defence and the general welfare, which are notorious to the whole Union, and which, being of a permanent nature, remain as the property of the nation,

The receipts, then, for the current 4 years, being..	$92,145,766 17
And the payments on account of the public debt, and for extraordinary objects, during the same time, being	61,395,940 00
There remain, for the expenses of the civil list, for the support of the army and navy, and every other expense of the government, during the four years in question, ...	$30,749,826 17

Or, in round numbers, about $7,700,000 per annum, for defraying all the ordinary expenses of the government.

Now, during the golden age of Mr. Jefferson's administration, the payments on account of the public debt never exceeded, in any successive four years of his time, the sum of $35,000,000; and the expenditures of that gentleman's administration in 1808, exclusively of the disbursements on account of the public debt for that year, amounted to six millions and a half of dollars. Let it be remembered, also, that, in 1808, the army was less, and for six years prior to 1808 much less, than it has been during the current four years; that the national fortifications were less extensive; that there was not then a seventy-four gun-ship in the American navy; that the frontier of the United States, and every thing relating to the Indian department, have, since that period, been greatly enlarged; that the expenses of the governmental establishment necessarily increase with the growth of population and the increasing wealth of the nation; and it will be seen and confessed that Mr. Monroe's administration, for the current four years, has been conducted quite as cheaply as that of Mr. Jefferson. It has, indeed, been estimated, that on the 1st of January of the present year, there will be a deficit in the Treasury of about two millions and a half of dollars; but this sum, added to the other, would present nothing beyond an annual average expenditure of something more than 8,000,000 of dollars. The civil, diplomatic, and miscellaneous, expenses of government, amounted to nearly one million and a half of dollars, eighteen years ago; and, at this day, they do not exceed six hundred thousand dollars additional; whilst the population and riches of the country, as well as the business of the public offices, have probably been duplicated.

It may, therefore, be confidently asserted, that, as it regards the moneyed transactions of Mr. Monroe's administration, there has been a strict application of the public funds to the objects for which they were by law intended, and a liberality of expenditure for things at once useful and noble, which has scarcely a parallel in the annals of the nation. As cases in point, we have adverted to the extensiveness of the fortifications, the ships of the line, which are built and building; and the pensions allowed to the surviving soldiers of the revolution—those brave men, whose stern fortitude, active courage, and extreme sufferings, have immortalized their character. If there is a small deficit in the past year, and one something larger estimated for the year 1821, the causes of it are to be sought for in that tenderness for the people which induced the abolition of the internal duties, in the grateful benevolence which increased the amount of pensions more than four millions of dollars in four years; and, above all, in that anxiety to pay off the national debt, which produced an appropriation of forty-nine millions of dollars for that purpose in so short a space of time.

Whilst justice is thus rendered to the administration of Mr. Monroe, it is necessary to record, with the severity of remark which historical truth requires, that there have been a number of pecuniary delinquencies, of the most shameful nature, by which the public Treasury has been deprived of money, so considerable in the sum total as to demand the peremptory interference of the Government. The Government has been prompt in arresting the progress of this evil. Laws have been enacted, compelling incumbents of office to pass more frequently than heretofore through the scrutiny of reappointment; enjoining the renewal of bonds from office-holders; and pursuing defaulters and their sureties with the swift remedy of warrants of distress for the recovery of outstanding balances. We say nothing of the debts due to the government for public lands, amounting, in the aggregate, to upwards of twenty-two millions of dollars. But we may be allowed to remark, that if the debtors of the public Treasury had been only ordinarily true to their engagements, and every money-receiving officer faithful to his trust, instead of the necessity of borrowing, there would, at this moment, be an overflowing exchequer.

Blameless in what relates to the finances, Mr. Monroe's administration is equally unblemished in what regards foreign affairs. Maritime marauders have been brushed from our borders; the voice of the Republic has been heard in the prisons of Spain, and liberated the American captive; and the flag of the Union, waving over its cannon in every quarter of the world, has ensured respect for our commerce, where it was liable to interruption, from the Gulf of Mexico to Cape Horn, from Peru to China, and thence to the Mediterranean Sea. The Barbary powers have been held in check; and whilst a small squadron stationed within the Straits of Gibraltar, by short cruises continually renewed, and occasional passages across the Atlantic, serves as a practical school for officers and seamen, the expense of maintaining it in active service is diminished by the annual saving of money, which otherwise would have to be expended in tribute and presents to the regencies of Algiers, Tunis, and Tripoli.

Agriculture—Commerce—Manufactures—Slave Trade, &c.

The controversy of opinions between the manufacturing and the agricultural and commercial classes of the community, has not slept during the year 1820. The subject is still before the Congress, where it will doubtless be decided according to calculations founded upon their respective values, with reference to the prosperity of society, and the sum of national benefit to be derived from the usefulness of each class. This question is so closely united with that of the national revenue, that wise men will reflect maturely before they definitively legislate upon it. The executive part of the government has, very properly, not interposed to bias a determination in one way or another. It is, above every thing else, a matter to be adjusted by the representatives of the people, who are best acquainted with the several local interests of their constituents throughout the Union.

It is not among the least gratifying circumstances of the year 1820, that piracy in the American seas has been nearly exterminated, and the trade in slaves much diminished. This has been mainly owing to the vigilance of our cruisers and the vigor of our national tribunals. The herd of freebooters, composed of unprincipled individuals of all nations, who sought, in the ports of the United States, and in the assumed character of Spanish patriots, the means of committing the most atrocious excesses on the ocean, have been executed, imprisoned, or dispersed. Public morals have been vindicated, and licentious adventurers taught to comprehend that republican institutions, whilst they afford an asylum to virtuous and unfortunate men of every description, who seek for happiness by the path of honor, afford no protection to such as pursue wealth, in the mask of patriotism, by the perpetration of crimes. The slave trade, although greatly restricted, unhappily still subsists on the coast of Africa, principally from the encouragement held out to it by the markets which are yet open in some of the European colonies. Connected with this subject is the resettlement of freed negroes in their native land, which was begun during the year 1820, under agents appointed by government, assisted by the efforts of the Colonization Society. The experiment has been, in some measure, unfortunate; several of the persons composing the expedition having died, during the sickly season, on the western coast of the African continent. This is what has almost always happened in similar cases; and particularly in the first attempts to plant colonies of white men in America. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the scheme will not, for that cause, be abandoned. This endeavor at a settlement on the African shore, under the auspices of the government of the United States, is worthy of particular notice, as being the only one which has been hitherto made, from this country, to establish a colony of any kind beyond sea.
